

McNeill Joins Handler Real Estate Organization as Director of Property Mgmt

By Christopher Anderson

October 19, 2016

Jesse McNeill has joined Handler Real Estate Organization as a director of property management in the firm's New York City office. In his new role, McNeill will oversee day-to-day operations of commercial assets owned by Handler.

Jesse McNeill, director, property management, Handler Real Estate Organization

Prior to joining Handler, McNeill spent time at Vornado Realty Trust, Tishman Speyer, and Colliers International. He has serviced more than 5 million square feet of class A office properties across New York City. While with Tishman Speyer, McNeill represented a handful of Rockefeller properties, including the Olympic Tower. At Vornado he managed notable office properties such as 650 and 595 Madison Ave. and 1740 Broadway.

"As our entire organization continues to grow it became important to create a new position to help manage our portfolio of owned assets," said Scott Galin, principal and CEO of Handler. "Jesse is a smart, sophisticated real estate executive with excellent experience working with world-class organizations and helping run significant assets and larger portfolios. He will make an excellent addition to our team."

McNeill received his bachelor's degree in broadcast journalism and cinema studies / dramatic literature from New York University, graduating cum laude in 2005.

